

Scipio, Slow March

This simple march is taken from the opera, "The Mercy Of Scipio", written in 1725 by Sir George Frederic Handel. This composer is well known for his oratorio, "The Messiah". This arrangement stays close to the original four-part form written by Handel. The lyrics, titled "Toll For The Brave", were written by William Cowper in 1782. When "Scipio" is played, the concept of simple, square rhythms should be reinforced. The operatic origin is shown in the melody which easily lends itself to being sung. As Scipio was a Roman Centurion, this piece should be played with grandeur and elegant phrasing, with plenty of emphasis on the horizontal accented notes which show strength and power.

Handel was a well traveled German who studied in Italy and made his career in England. His music reflected influences from all of these countries and he was regarded as the best composer of his time. Handel was an extremely corpulent man well known for his sense of humor. However, he was also a strict music master. He reportedly once held a recalcitrant soprano out a window until she agreed to sing his operas the way he told her to. As the soprano was no featherweight, Handel must have been strong as well as large. At this time, singers were expected to be temperamental, and at one public performance of Handel's works in 1727, two sopranos had a fist fight on-stage despite the fact the Princess Caroline was in attendance.

Although Handel was painted as a tyrant and glutton by some, he made many jokes at the expense of public figures and was well loved by the British people for his pious and honorable nature, and was buried in Westminster Abbey in 1759. The slow march, Scipio, is played by British and Commonwealth Services bands, a fitting tribute to this great composer.

Lyrics:

Toll, for the Brave!
The Brave that are no more,
All sunk beneath the wave,
Fast by their native shore!
Eight hundred of the brave,
Whose courage well was tried,
Had made the vessel heel,
And laid her on her side;
A land breeze shook the shrouds,
And she was overset;
Down went the "Royal George",
With all her crew complete.

Refrain:

Toll for the Brave!
The Brave that are no more,
All sunk beneath the wave,
Fast by their native shore!

Toll for the Brave!
Brave Kempenfelt is gone;
His last sea fight is fought;
His work of glory done.
It was not in the battle,
No tempest gave the shock,
She sprang no fatal leak,
She ran upon no rock.
His sword was in its sheath,
His fingers held the pen,
When Kempenfelt went down,
With twice four hundred men.

Weigh the vessel up,
Once dreaded by our foes,
And mingle with our cup
The tears that England owes.
Her timbers yet are sound,
And she may float again,
Full charg'd with England's thunder,
And plough the distant main.
But Kempenfelt is gone,
His victories are o'er,
And he and his eight hundred
Must plough the wave no more!
